Overview: This activity provides an opportunity to review and present what is relevant to primary care and advance experience about up to date information applicable to day-to-day practice. The discussion will review a general understanding of dietary supplements as part of an integrative medicine approach and build a foundational knowledge of the most popular supplements. This activity will also highlight how best to discuss treatment options with patients.

Who should attend? Residents in training, fellows, medical students and other interested health care professionals at UTSW and Community primary care.
