Overview: This activity provides an opportunity to review and present what is relevant to primary care and advance experience about up to date information applicable to day-to-day practice. Back pain as we all know is a very common problem especially in geriatric patients, however conventional pain medications are not necessarily safe in elderly patients. This talk will help participants understand the different types of pain and identify the most common causes. It will also review pathophysiology of pain in the elderly and efficacious therapy methods.

Who should attend? Residents in training, fellows, medical students and other interested health care professionals at UTSW and Community primary care.
